Mrs. Erickson,

I'm resending you the report. I used your last email address yesterday, your husband's hotmail account.

Best,
Alan Cheung

Dear Mrs. Erickson,

Chrissy stopped by to ask for a more detailed progress report. See attached. I hope it helps paint a better picture. I still have one more grade to enter that's not reflected in the report sent out last Friday.

Thank you,
Alan Cheung

Thanks for getting back with me.
Chrissy said she saw you last night at the prom and you looked nice.
Thanks for taking time to be at the prom for Chrissy and others.
I wondered how the sophomore lock-in went. It seemed like a great idea.
You must be up to your ears with teenagers right now on this Sunday a.m.

Re: her mislabeling - I agree and am sure she will, too.
I see her studying graphs but obviously she needs to thoroughly understand this error.
I hope it won't bring her grade down even more.

I know this coming week her flex times are already taken with things.
I'll suggest she still meet with you about this when she is able.

Thank you for the heads up.
Truly,
Brenda
